What is the Landcare conference?

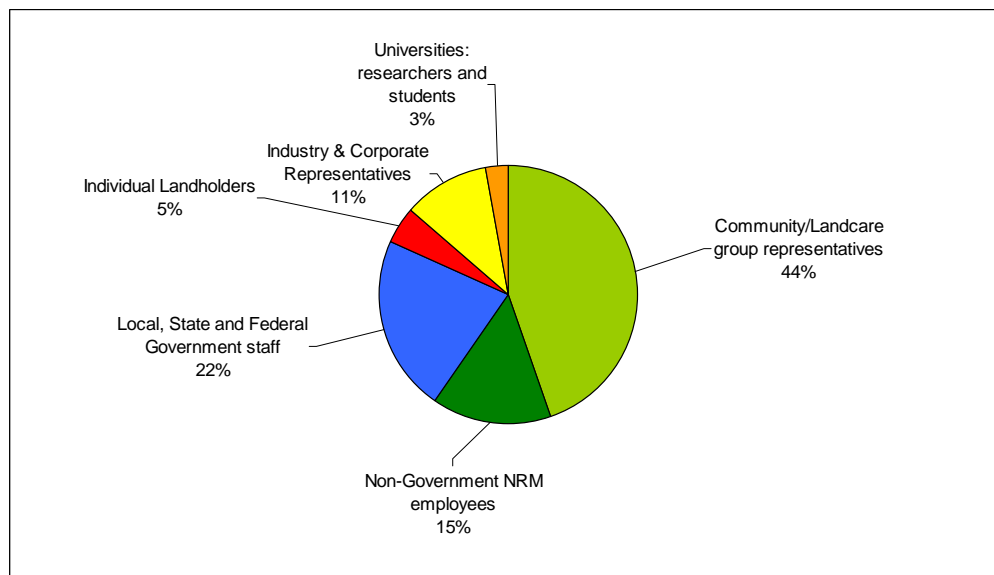

The first Landcare conference was held in Brisbane in 1990. Since then landholders, governments, businesses, researchers and conservationists have gathered annually in different locations to discuss trends in land management and to celebrate their successes. The nineteenth annual Queensland Landcare Conference, with the theme, Infinity – Sustainability by Design will be hosted by North Burnett Landcare Group in Monto, 21 - 24 September, 2008.

Who attends the conference?

Historically, the Landcare conference has had excellent attendance, in excess of 300 participants. In 2008 we are anticipating up to 350 delegates will attend the conference.

Most of these participants represent the 350 Landcare and other conservation and natural resource management groups in Queensland and more broadly, representatives from other conservation and environment groups; local, state and federal government; landcare and farm suppliers; project officers and facilitators; major business partners; engineers, planners and consultants; primary producers; and industry groups.

More than 400 people attended the 2007 Queensland Landcare Conference held in Mackay. The chart below shows the spread of delegate representation.

About the trade exhibition

Between 20 and 25 trade exhibition spaces will be erected in a purpose built marquee in the grounds of the Monto Showground. Where possible, meals will be served throughout the trade area to allow for increased patronage to exhibitions.

Trade exhibition spaces are available for $1,500 (excluding GST). Exhibitors will receive:

- Constructed booth with fascia sign for each exhibition (sizes to be confirmed);
- Reduced registration fee for staff attending the trade exhibition (maximum of two staff);
- Acknowledge in conference bulletin (with a distribution of over 1200 people) and in the guide to exhibitors which will be prepared for the event.
